

The use of 3D simulation GIS in solution mining

Authors: Mark Jagt (Ingenieursbureau Oranjewoud B.V.)
Arnaud Mensen (Ingenieursbureau Oranjewoud B.V.)

Co-authors: Wim Paar (Akzo Nobel Salt B.V.)
Henk Leusink (Akzo Nobel Salt B.V.)

Introduction

The use of Geographic Information Systems (GIS) in solution mining has proven its value over the past few years. It is being used as a decision support and an information and visualisation tool. The recent addition of the 3D component to GIS makes it possible to see objects and their environment in 3D. This gives a far better reproduction of the actual shape and size of objects in relation to their surrounding environment.

©2022 – Solution Mining Institute
Full Paper is Available in the SMRI
Library(www.solutionmining.org)